

Hello Splunk Recruitment Team,

My name is Simon Chen, and I am interested in the Summer 2021 Back-end Software Engineer Co-op. I am a Computer Science student at the University of Toronto currently holding a 3.7 GPA and seeking my first substantial internship experience. I think I would be a good fit for your position as I am not only very passionate about computer science related endeavors, but I enjoy taking on unique and interesting projects which can be demonstrated through the various projects I have completed and competitions I have participated in. In addition, through university, I have formally covered topics such as data structures, complex algorithms, software design, time/space complexity and much more at a university-level. I would like to use this opportunity to extend my knowledge of development by learning how software and its development works at an industry level. I am available for an interview at any time during the day. I hope to hear back, and I am looking forward to working with the Splunk team.

Sincerely, Simon
